

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Abstract	iii
List of Figures	viii
List of Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	x
Introduction	1
Chapter
1. Man's Prehistoric and Historic Use of Color	4
Early Human Use of Color	4
Universal Use of Color	4
Modern Use of Color	6
History of Natural Dyes	6
2. Cochineal in Pre-Columbian Mexican and Peruvian Textiles	8
Dyed Textiles in Mexico	8
Dyed Textiles in Peru	9
Early Use of Cochineal in Mexico	11
Cochineal and Pre-Columbian Trade	11
The Florentine Codex	12
The Zapotec and Cochineal	14
The Zapotec Cochineal God Coqueelaa	14
Sierra Chontal Ritual	14
3. The Spanish Discovery of the New World Cochineal for Production and Trade	17
Documentation of Cochineal in Early Colonial Spain	17

Arrival of the Spanish and the Discovery of Cochineal	18
Cochineal: A Superior Dye to Kermes	20
The Cochineal Insect and Its Production	21
The Nopaleros	21
Dactylopius Coccus	22
Wild and Domestic Cochineal	22
Nopaleries	24
Protection From Rain, Wind, and Sun	27
Predators of the Cochineal Insect and Host Cacti	27
Cochineal Insect Harvest	28
Killing and Drying the Harvest	28
New Methods of Cochineal Production	30
Spanish Cochineal Exports	30
Regulations for Export of Cochineal	30
Exporting Cochineal	30
Development of the Cochineal Industry in Oaxaca	32
Inspection and Export	36
Cochineal Production Levels	37
Shipping Cochineal and the European Market	39
Trade Routes From the New World to Europe	39
The Two-Hundred Year Secret	40
4. The Expansion of the Cochineal Industry	42
Cochineal in French Haiti	42
The Spread of the Cochineal Industry by the Spanish	42
Cochineal in Guatemala	43
Cochineal Industry in Australia	45

Cochineal in Dutch Java	46
Cochineal Attempted in Algiers	46
Cochineal in the Canary Islands	47
Cochineal Industry in Peru	49
Cochineal Again in Mexico	50
The Father of Cochineal	50
Small-Scale Production in Tequisistlan	50
Ancient Recipe for Dyeing with Cochineal	51
Government Revival of the Cochineal Industry	51
Cochineal Greenhouse in San Pedro Martir	52
5. History of Dyes and the Dyeing Industry in the Old World	57
History of Ancient Dyes	57
Ancient Dyes in the Old World	59
History of Dyeing Industry	59
Dye Shops	61
Dyeing with Natural Dyes	62
Chemistry of Dyeing	63
6. Cochineal in Prehistoric and Historic Textiles	64
The Use of Cochineal in Weaving from Northern Mexico and New Mexico	64
Cochineal Dye Use in New Mexico	65
Pueblo Weavers	66
Spanish Weavers and the Rio Grande Blanket	67
Navaho Weavers	67
Cochineal Found in Ancient Textiles	69
Dyed Textiles in the Bar Kochba Cave	69
Discoveries from the Ararat Valley	69

Textiles from Guatemala and Peru	70
Cochineal in Textiles From Guatemala	70
Dyes Found in Peruvian Textiles	71
7. Analysis of Dyes in Ancient Textiles	73
Environmental Archaeology	74
History of Dye Analysis	75
Procedures for Dye and Pigment Analysis of Ancient Textiles	76
Dye Standards	76
Contamination of Ancient Textiles	77
Dye Analysis Procedures	79
The Spectrophotometric Analysis	79
Chemical Analysis of Dyes	81
Spectrophotometric Analysis	83
Samples	83
Spectrophotometric Test	95
Results	95
8. Discussion	96
Appendices
I. Sacred Prayer of the Cochineal Ritual	100
II. Glossary of Names for Cochineal and Related Words	113
III. Cochineal Recipes	119
IV. Translation of "Avances en la Investigación Productiva de Grana - Cochinilla"	129
V. Graphed Results of the Spectrophotometric Analysis	142
VI. Technical Facts	154
List of References	160

LIST OF FIGURES

Figure	Page
1. Eighteenth-century diagrams of the cochineal insect and body parts	23
2. Eighteenth-century woodcarving showing the tasks of cochineal production	25
3. Eighteenth-century wood-carving showing the labor-intensive nature of cochineal production	26
4. Sixteenth-century figure of predators of the cochineal insect and the nopal cactus	29
5. Map displaying both successful and unsuccessful districts for the exportation of cochineal	44
6. Photographs taken of the cochineal greenhouses in San Pedro Martir, and of Ernesto Castaneda Hidalgo pointing out the mother cochineal	53
7. Photograph of an Indian woman holding two sacks of cochineal which she harvested from the greenhouse. A photograph of a pan of newly harvested cochineal	55
8. Woodcut of sixteenth-century dye shop by Jost Amman (1539-1591)	60
9. Photographs of textiles from the Nazca and Tihuanaco cultures of Peru	85
10. Photographs of textiles from the Nazca and Chimú cultures of Peru	87
11. Photographs of textiles from the Chancay culture of Peru	89
12. Photographs of textiles from the Chancay and Inca (?) cultures of Peru	91
13. Photographs of textiles of the Chimú and Tiahuanacoid cultures of Peru	93

List of Tables

Table	Page
1. Pre-Columbian civilization in Peru	10
2. Weights, measures, and currency	19
3. A note on currency and measurement	20
4. Mexican cochineal production and value from 1758 to 1826	38
5. Amount of carminic and kermesic acid present in four scale insects	82
6. List of the eleven samples submitted for dye analysis	84
7. Results of the spectrophotometric analysis	95

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Throughout my work on my thesis I was told that what I was doing was good and this knowledge sustained me to the finish. For his unfailing belief in me I give my deepest thanks to Dr. Dudley Burton. Calvin Smith was an invaluable assistant on my committee, and I wish to thank him for helping me obtain the Peruvian textile samples. I also wish to acknowledge Dr. W. M. Alexander, Dr. John Fox, Dr. Arthur Murphy, and all the professors whom I was fortunate enough to have for my graduate instruction.

My appreciation goes to Dr. Martha Reese for all her help, and for giving me an opportunity to see cochineal being grown in Mexico. A special thanks goes to Dr. David Wenger who conducted the spectrophotometric analysis on the Peruvian textile samples, and to Stephanie Strickland for her translation of the booklet from Mexico.

I was especially encouraged by Roger Wolf of Alliance Import Co., and the willing staff at the Texas Memorial Museum at the University of Texas in Austin, in particular Lynn Denton, Marily Lenz, and Kathy Epstein.

My heartfelt gratitude goes to my bright and lovely daughter Laurie Anne Dutton, whose encouragement and computer knowledge allowed me to finish my thesis. I am extremely fortunate to have a large and supportive family, and I wish to thank all of them for their encouragement.